

DIVING DEEP

A sperm whale leaves the sunlit upper levels of the ocean and heads into the dark ocean depths in search of food. Diving to greater depths than any other mammal, it descends at a rate of up to 10 ft (3 m) per second. Away from the light, its eyes are of little use and the whale relies on echolocation.