

'Black Russian'

Originally from Russia, this compact, beefsteak variety produces heavy crops of fairly large, deep-maroon fruits, which are succulent, with a hint of salt. Plants have a vine habit and will need support with sticks or string. Protect against blight in cool, wet regions.

-  suitable for containers
-  late spring to early summer
-  some resistance
-  not hardy
-  summer to early fall

'Tigerella'

Although flavor is fair and crops only reasonable, this vine variety is grown for its small, red- and green-striped, attractive fruits. Best-suited to greenhouse growing, it does crop outdoors in warm regions. Support plants with sticks or string.

-  suitable for containers
-  late spring to early summer
-  some resistance
-  not hardy
-  summer to early fall

'Stupice'

This heavy-cropping vine tomato was originally bred in the Czech Republic. It bears heavy crops of bright-red, round fruits of good flavor, which ripen early, even in cooler regions. Plants should be grown up sticks or string, and can be grown indoors or out.

-  suitable for containers
-  late spring to early summer
-  some resistance
-  not hardy
-  summer to early fall