

'Bell Boy'

This conventional sweet pepper bears very heavy crops of blocky, fleshy fruits, which ripen from bright green to glistening red. Early, and with unusually good tolerance of cool conditions, this variety has very good cropping potential, both indoors and out.

suitable for containers

spring to summer

some resistance

not hardy

late summer to early fall

'Ariane'

This hybrid sweet pepper produces heavy, early crops of sweet, fleshy, blocky fruits, which ripen from green to orange. Plants grow to 30 in (76 cm) tall, and have an open, easy-to-manage habit. They are well adapted to cooler regions.

suitable for containers

spring to summer

some resistance

not hardy

late summer to early fall

'Alma Paprika'

This non-hybrid, paprika pepper is not sweet, but it is not burning hot either. The delightful round fruits have thick walls, and they ripen from creamy-white through orange into a deep red. The plants are best-suited to warmer regions.

suitable for containers

spring to summer

some resistance

not hardy

late summer to early fall