

▲ This sun-shaped insignia belongs to the Jaipur State Railway, which was owned by the Princely State of Jaipur.

The Princely pioneers

In the early 1850s, the Government of India obtained concessions from the royal Gaekwad (the ruling family's name) of Baroda so that the Bombay Baroda and Central India (BB&CI) Railway could build a line between Bombay and Gujarat. By the early 1860s, the Gaekwad had decided to build a narrow-gauge line of his own between Miyagam, a village in Gujarat on the BB&CI line and Dabhoi, a key trade centre about 32 km away.