

Interestingly, when the NGSR was integrated in November 1951 into the Central Railway, it was the largest railway system run by any Indian Princely State. It was 2,351 km in length, of which 1,107 km was broad gauge and 1,244 km was metre gauge.

▲ Mir Osman Ali Khan, Asaf Jah VII, the last Nizam of Hyderabad, is seen here with his staff awaiting the arrival of Lord Willingdon, the 22nd Viceroy and Governor-General of India, in 1933 at the platform of the Nampally station. The station was commissioned by the Nizam in 1907 and is today known as the Hyderabad Deccan station.