

“bent on maintaining a standard of construction in keeping with nature’s handiwork”.

In 1886, all the lines in this region, including several smaller companies, merged to become the State-managed North Western Railway. These connected Delhi with Amritsar, Lahore, Karachi, Quetta, and the Khyber Pass till Partition in 1947.

▲ Cutting through mountains to build the tunnel and bridge in Quetta was a massive obstacle while building the Kandahar State Railway.

“... no engineer who has seen the place can withhold his tribute of admiration to the patient skill that has daily faced disaster.”

FROM THE PIONEER, 3 MAY 1893, ON THE CONSTRUCTION AT MUD GORGE ON THE HARNAI–BOSTAN LINE IN THE NORTH-WESTERN FRONTIER