

▲ Dadabhai Naoroji, was one of the country's first leaders to challenge the colonizer's view of the railways and point out that it seemed to only favour the British.

“The sight of an Indian arrested merely for travelling by rail in his own country provided a ready example of why colonial rule was morally unacceptable.”

DAVID CAMPION, “RAILWAY POLICING AND SECURITY IN COLONIAL INDIA, C. 1860–1930”
