

▲ Indian nationalist Subhas Chandra Bose greets his many followers as he stands in a train compartment. From meeting and greeting followers to escaping authorities, Bose's relationship with the railways in India was quite varied.

“Railways were as much the substance of state power as they were the instrument of that power. To contest one was to contest the other.”

IAN J KERR, “REPRESENTATION AND REPRESENTATIONS OF THE RAILWAYS OF COLONIAL AND POST-COLONIAL SOUTH ASIA” (2003)
