

into the Research Design and Standards Organisation (RDSO), and became the technical advisor to the Railway Board, various zonal railways, and manufacturing units. Over the years, its scope has expanded from being an independent research and development centre to providing consulting services to non-railway organizations and railway projects in countries across the world.