

POINT-TO-POINT

Introduced in 2009, the Durgam Express is a long-distance, non-stop train service running between major cities in the country. It derives its name from the Bengali word durgam, meaning “without a stop”. One of the fastest train services in India with a maximum speed of 130 km/h, the first train in this category ran between Sealdah, Kolkata, and New Delhi in September 2009. These trains have both air-conditioned (AC) and non-AC sleeper coaches. The coaches are characterized by bright yellow- and green-coloured abstract designs.
