

CAPITAL CONNECTION

The Sampark Kranti literally meaning “connectivity revolution”, provides connectivity between the national capital, Delhi, and other cities. The Express train is effectively a more affordable version of the famous Rajdhani Express. Initially a non-stop service, stoppages were added later. With a maximum speed of 110 km/h and fewer stops, it has drastically reduced the travel time. It also offers value-added services, such as a public address system and dedicated staff. The first train ran between Delhi’s Hazrat Nizamuddin and Bengaluru’s Yeshwanthpur in February 2004.
