

THE CURIOUS CASE OF THE FIRST TRAIN

On 31 October 1850, the Chief Justice of Bombay, JP Wilson, laid the foundation stone for the Great Indian Peninsula Railways (GIPR) line in Sion, Bombay. This auspicious inauguration or bhoomipujan was the first of its kind for railways in India. Three years later, the first passenger train made its run to Thana, forever changing India's landscape.