

Plotting an innovation profile

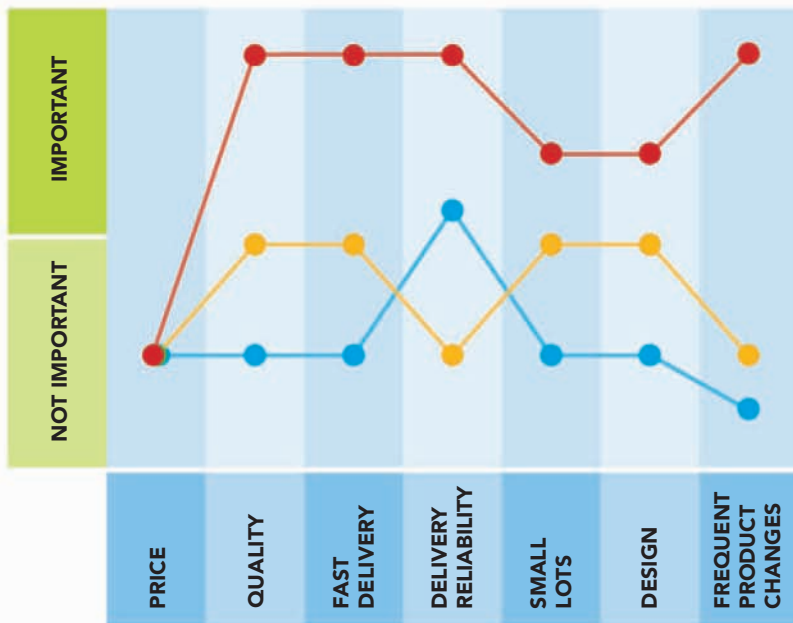

TIP

KEEP UP-TO-DATE

Make sure you base your analysis on the most recent market research.

Having identified the order qualifiers and order winners in your target market, use market research to plot them on a simple graph against their importance to consumers. Then develop a scoring system for how well you and your competitors meet these requirements, and add the lines. This will give you a simple outline of where your strengths and opportunities lie in a given market. In the example, you are behind your competitor, so you either close the gap, or exit from the market.

Measuring your performance

● What the market wants

● How well you actually perform

● How well your best competitor performs