

HAZARDOUS EXPERIMENT

In experiments with zero-length launching at Edwards Air Force Base, California, both F-84 Thunderjets and F-100 Super Sabres were launched from missile platforms by a jettisonable rocket pod under the tail. Note the ambulance standing by during this hazardous trial of a new technology. This series of zero-length launches was aimed at allowing fighters to get airborne even if enemy action had totally destroyed their runways.

