

AIRMOBILE TROOPS

Infantrymen of the US 1st Cavalry Division leap from their Bell UH-1 helicopter to conduct a reconnaissance patrol in South Vietnam in 1967. Airmobile units such as the 1st Cavalry were central to American combat tactics in the Vietnam War, which relied on the mobility offered by helicopters as well as the firepower that could be brought to bear from the air.

