

AMERICAN ROCKETEER

Robert Goddard, far left, discusses one of his rockets with assistants. Goddard's inventive brilliance and persistence in experimentation were only matched by his stubborn resistance to sharing the results of his work with others.