

▲ PYRAMIDS

Between c. 2650 BCE and c. 1750 BCE, pharaohs were buried in massive stone tombs called pyramids. The biggest were constructed at Giza in Egypt, shown above. They belong to Khufu (right), his son Khafra (center), and grandson Menkaure (left). The smaller pyramids in front are the tombs of queens.

▲ CHARIOT WARFARE

During the later New Kingdom, pharaohs used fast horse-drawn chariots in times of war. The lightweight chariots allowed the pharaohs, who were armed with bows and arrows, to move swiftly over the battlefield.

FACT

The Great Pyramid at Giza, Egypt, is the oldest of the Seven Wonders of the Ancient World, and the only one that still stands today.

▼ THE FIRST PHARAOH

Before 3100 BCE, the two kings who ruled Upper and Lower Egypt wore different crowns. Narmer is believed to have united the two kingdoms. The two sides of the Narmer stone palette (below), found in Egypt in the 19th century, show him wearing the crowns of each kingdom.

Narmer wears the red crown of Lower Egypt.

Narmer wears the white crown of the Upper kingdom.

Serpopards (part leopard, part serpent)

Plumed headdress

CHILD IN TIME

Tutankhamen was only eight or nine when he became pharaoh c. 1333 BCE. After his death c. 1323 BCE, he was buried in a secret tomb, which was discovered in 1922. Filled with treasures, the tomb made the boy pharaoh world famous.

