

business. Perhaps you want to run a business from home doing what you love. Maybe you are driven by wanting to make a positive impact on society. Think about how you see your business in the future. You might want to grow your company and employ staff, building a family firm for future generations. Or perhaps you want to make enough money to sell and move on. Maybe you want to generate wealth to buy your dream home or travel. Or you may simply want enough income to replace what you earned as an employee.

SIDE HUSTLES

Rather than give up your paid employment right away, you may want to start your new business venture in your spare time. A start-up that begins in this way is known as a “side hustle.” You keep the benefits of being employed, while testing the viability of a new business. It is a compromise, but it can also be a springboard, allowing you to develop your business idea with less personal and financial risk.

“I knew that if I failed I wouldn’t regret that, but I knew the one thing I might regret was not trying.”

Jeff Bezos, founder and CEO of Amazon

MY COMPANY

Pros

- › Potential for higher earnings, without the limits put in place by an employer.
- › Greater control, independence, and flexibility to work around family/personal commitments.
- › Ability to choose your hours and work at your own pace.
- › Potential for greater job satisfaction—all your efforts go toward achieving your goals.
- › Opportunity to pursue your dream.

Cons

- › Greater financial risk with less security as a business owner.
- › Sense of isolation from working independently with less human interaction.
- › Responsibility for mistakes and failures, as well as successes, rests with you.
- › Potential strain on family/social life from working long hours.
- › No income if sick or on vacation.
- › Inability to switch off at the end of the working day.

