

DEVELOPING NEW PRODUCTS AND SERVICES

Regularly reviewing your products and services and developing new ones is one of the most effective ways to improve what your business offers customers. It can be costly and risky but also rewarding. Here are some points to consider:

- › Keep lists of potential product ideas from customers, family, competitors, and articles in the media.
- › Analyze the market, looking at trends and your competition to assess any new opportunity and its potential sales.
- › Test the market by trying out the new offering on customers who fit your target audience profile.
- › Test concepts, offering samples to customers or testing new services on selected clients to see whether an idea is worth pursuing.
- › Develop the product, using customer or client feedback as well as any relevant market analysis.
- › Launch the product using social media, email newsletters, and seasonal fairs to kick-start sales.