

Stories travel through time – they come to us from the distant past, drifting like voices on a breeze, and then whisk us back to where they came from. The myths in this book were first written down in the 13th century, but they are far older than that. They were created and told by the Norse – a fierce, dynamic and creative people, also known as the Vikings.

Reading the Norse tales allows us to climb snow-capped mountains, roam beaches and battlefields, feast with gods and monsters, then set off with them on strange adventures.

I invite you to read on and be transported back to an age long gone that is full of magic, mystery and adventure.

Matt Ralphs

MATT RALPHS, AUTHOR