

BRAGI

GOD OF POETRY

Husband of Idun, Bragi is a wise god with a deep knowledge of history, myths and stories. He is a gifted wordsmith, poet and musician. Bragi makes moving and emotional compositions, which he recites when the Aesir gather for feasts.

PARENTS: Odin (possibly) and Gunnlod (possibly)

CHILDREN: None

SACRED SYMBOLS

BRAGI'S TOAST

In ritual celebrations, people traditionally gave a toast to Bragi.

HARP

Bragi is a musician as well as a writer and the harp is his best instrument.

TONGUE OF RUNES

Bragi has runes – the ancient letters of the Norse alphabet – carved on his tongue.

BEARD

This god has thick facial hair – bearded Norsemen were once called “Beard-Bragi”.

BRAGI THE POET

Poets, such as Bragi, are called “skalds” in the ancient Norse language and are highly regarded by the gods. Their poems are an entertaining way of recording and passing on stories and events.

