

THE SKIING GIANTESS

Skadi is a giantess who became accepted by the Aesir as a goddess when she married the sea god, Njord. Skadi is a skilled warrior. When the Aesir killed her father, furious Skadi prepared to crush them in battle. Rather than face her, the Aesir preferred to bargain their way out of trouble.

FATHER: Thjazi

CHILDREN: Saeming

SACRED SYMBOLS

BOW AND ARROW
Skadi is a great hunter and can hit any target with an arrow released from her bow.

WINTER
Skadi is associated with winter because she lives high up in the freezing mountains.

SERPENT
Skadi uses a venomous snake to punish Loki for the death of Baldr.

SKIS
Skadi is an excellent skier – the best way to travel in snowy mountain areas.

SKADI AND THE SEA
Unlike Hymir, Skadi detests the sea. After marrying Njord, she has to stay overnight on the beach and complains at the awful screeching of the gulls waking her up. She prefers her mountain home, where it's quiet.
