

The Vikings ventured as far away as Greenland in the west and Russia in the east.

EXPLORERS

The Vikings sailed the oceans searching for new places to explore, trade with, or conquer. Their longships were strong and swift. Powered by oar and sail, they could be beached in shallow water and were light enough to be carried over land.

WARRIORS

The Vikings were feared and ruthless fighters who specialized in launching surprise raids on coastal towns and monasteries – killing, and taking slaves. They wore iron helmets and fought mainly with axes, spears, swords and shields.

CRAFTWORKERS

As well as being warriors, the Vikings were skilled craftworkers. Weavers made colourful textiles, metalsmiths created fine jewellery from precious metals, and armourers fashioned ornate weapons and armour.
