

TREE SMALL

Peach

Prunus persica This crop produces large juicy fruits, which ripen from midsummer to early fall. Choose a compact modern variety for the best harvest. Plant in soil-based potting mix; water and feed well, and protect from frost in spring.

↔ 6ft (2m) in a pot

☪ Z5–8

ANNUAL/BIENNIAL SMALL

Summer radish

Raphanus sativus Sown from spring to early fall, this crop forms succulent peppery roots in just five weeks. Pull the roots once large enough, then re-sow a new batch. Ideal for windowboxes and pots. Considered invasive in some areas.

↔ 8in (20cm)

SHRUB MEDIUM

Black currant

Ribes nigrum An upright branching shrub that flowers in spring, leading to strings of sharp-tasting black berries. Plant it in a large container of soil-based potting mix. Mulch with compost in spring and water regularly throughout summer.

↔ 5ft (1.5m)

☪ Z3–8

SHRUB MEDIUM

Red currant

Ribes rubrum This branching shrub blooms in spring and bears trailing strings of sharp-tasting bright red fruits in summer. Plant in a large container of soil-based potting mix. Mulch in spring; water regularly in summer. Considered invasive in some areas.

↔ 5ft (1.5m)

☪ Z3–8

SHRUB MEDIUM

White currant

Ribes rubrum This upright, branching spring-flowering shrub forms strings of sharp-tasting, almost transparent, white berries in summer. Plant in soil-based potting mix. Mulch in spring; water well in summer. Considered invasive in some areas.

↔ 5ft (1.5m)

☪ Z3–8

SHRUB MEDIUM

Culinary gooseberry

Ribes uva-crispa This branching, often thorny, shrub produces large crops of round sharp-tasting berries in summer that are best cooked before eating. Plant in a container of soil-based potting mix; water regularly and mulch in spring.

↔ 5ft (1.5m)

☪ Z5–9

SHRUB MEDIUM

Dessert gooseberry

Ribes uva-crispa This often thorny, branching shrub flowers in spring. It bears round, red or green sweet-tasting fruits in summer, which can be eaten raw or cooked. Plant in a container of soil-based potting mix and water well. Mulch in spring.

↔ 5ft (1.5m)

☪ Z5–9

SHRUB MEDIUM

Rosemary

Rosmarinus officinalis A tall bushy evergreen subshrub with aromatic, dark green needlelike leaves and purplish blue blooms from spring to summer. Use the leaves to flavor meat dishes. Grow in a large pot of soil-based potting mix.

↔ 5ft (1.5m)

☪ Z8–10

CLIMBER MEDIUM

Thornless blackberry

Rubus fruticosus This climbing shrub has dissected leaves and thornless stems. From late summer to fall, it bears clusters of large glossy black berries. Plant in a large container of soil-based potting mix; provide support for the stems.

↔ 8ft (2.5m)

☪ Z3–8

PERENNIAL MEDIUM

Common sorrel

Rumex acetosa This upright perennial has oval, aromatic green leaves that are patterned with red veins in some forms. Pick the young tangy leaves throughout summer to add to salads, or cook them like spinach to make soups and purées.

↔ 24in (60cm)

☪ Z3–7

SHRUB SMALL

Sage

Salvia officinalis This shrubby evergreen subshrub has textured, aromatic gray-green leaves that are used in cooking. It bears spikes of lilac-pink flowers in summer. Plant in soil-based potting mix; it can also be used in winter displays.

↔ 32in (80cm) ↔ 3ft (1m)

☪ Z5–9

SHRUB SMALL

Purple sage

Salvia officinalis* 'Purpurascens' This shrubby evergreen subshrub, suitable as an annual, has oval, aromatic purple leaves that fade with age. The lilac-pink summer flower spikes can be removed to promote leaf growth. Use the leaves in cooking.

↔ 32in (80cm) ↔ 3ft (1m)

☪ Z5–9