

Recipes for seasonal effects

COLORFUL SUMMER BORDER

For midsummer color, combine this group of perennials and grasses for a contemporary border. The hot orange and yellow yarrow and euphorbia are tempered by the grass, pheasant's tail grass, and blue sea holly, which also introduce different shapes and forms. Repeat these plants throughout your border to produce a cohesive design, and also include some alliums, masterwort, and irises to create interest earlier in the season. Plant this collection in a sunny site in free-draining soil.

Plant list

- | | |
|------------------------------------|--------------------------------|
| 1 Eryngium x zabelii | 4 Euphorbia species |
| 2 Anemathele lessoniana | 5 Trifolium species |
| 3 Achillea 'Walther Funcke' | 6 Achillea 'Terracotta' |

LATE SPRING BORDER

Ideal for a bog garden or moisture-retentive clay, this border of leafy ferns and perennials, interspersed with colorful flowers, will perform well in part-shade. The ostrich fern and giant rhubarb are large plants, so ensure you allow them sufficient space and do not let them swamp the dainty primroses and irises in front. To extend the color into summer, also include astilbe and meadowsweet. Mulch in spring and add organic matter.

Plant list

- | |
|------------------------------------|
| 1 Primula species |
| 2 Dicentra formosa |
| 3 Iris sibirica |
| 4 Gunnera manicata |
| 5 Matteuccia struthiopteris |
| 6 Hosta species |

