

Plants for spring beds

As the cold, dark days of winter fade, the new season bursts into life with a blaze of colorful flowers and fresh green growth.

Hellebores are among the first to bloom in early spring, and look great together with bold groups of early daffodils and a sprinkling of anemones in front. As spring unfolds, more flowers join the party. Choose tulips, bergenias, and primroses in a range of bright or pastel shades to decorate beds, backed by shrubs and trees decked with blossoms. Also include a few fragrant plants in your design. Many viburnums have a delicious scent, as do daphnes and deciduous azaleas. However, large-flowered fritillaries have an unpleasant smell, so site them carefully with this in mind.

PERENNIAL SMALL

Anemone blanda

GRECIAN WINDFLOWER Grow this tiny perennial corm, with its daisy-like blue, pink, or white early spring flowers, where it can be seen at the front of a bed or along a pathway. Plant the tubers in fall.

↑4in (10cm) ↔6in (15cm)

☀️ ⚠️ Z5–8

PERENNIAL SMALL

Anemone coronaria

De Caen Group

POPPY ANEMONE This perennial has cut green leaves and shallow bowl-shaped red, blue-violet, and white early spring blooms that inject borders with vibrant seasonal color. Plant the tubers in fall.

↑12in (30cm) ↔6in (15cm)

☀️ ⚠️ Z8–10

PERENNIAL SMALL

Bergenia purpurascens

PURPLE BERGENIA Grow this evergreen perennial toward the front of a bed, where its rounded dark green leaves and spikes of dark pink spring flowers will contrast well with bulbs, such as daffodils and grape hyacinth.

↑16in (40cm) ↔24in (60cm) or more

☀️ ☀️ ☀️ Z3–8

CLIMBER LARGE

Clematis montana

HIMALAYAN CLEMATIS This vigorous deciduous climber has cut midgreen foliage and, from late spring to early summer, numerous white or pink single flowers with yellow centers. Plant the roots in shade, and stems in sun. It needs a large support.

↑40ft (12m)

☀️ ☀️ ☀️ Z6–9

BULB MEDIUM

Allium neapolitanum

WHITE GARLIC This upright perennial bulb has strap-shaped gray-green leaves and loose spherical clusters of star-shaped white flowers in spring. Plant the bulbs in fall in groups toward the front of a spring border.

↑20in (50cm)

☀️ ☀️ Z6–9

PERENNIAL MEDIUM

Amsonia tabernaemontana

WILLOW BLUE-STAR This upright deciduous perennial bears slim tapering leaves that turn yellow in fall. Clusters of star-shaped blue flowers appear from late spring to summer, offering a long season of color.

↑3ft (1m) ↔12in (30cm)

☀️ ☀️ ⚠️ Z3–9 (N)

SHRUB SMALL

Cytisus x praecox

SCOTCH BROOM This bushy deciduous shrub has green stems, small leaves, and a profusion of pale creamy yellow pealike blooms, which lend an informal note to spring borders. Varieties include 'Allgold' (above) with golden-yellow blooms.

↑4ft (1.2m) ↔5ft (1.5m)

☀️ ☀️ ⚠️ Z6–9

PERENNIAL MEDIUM

Aquilegia vulgaris

COLUMBINE An upright perennial with green leaves divided into rounded lobed leaflets. From late spring to early summer, it produces pendent, single or double flowers in shades of violet, blue, pink, and white.

↑3ft (1m) ↔18in (45cm)

☀️ ☀️ ☀️ ☀️ Z3–8

SHRUB MEDIUM

Daphne x burkwoodii

BURKWOOD DAPHNE Upright and semievergreen, this shrub has small green leaves and highly fragrant pink flowers, which complement tulips and columbine in a mixed late spring border. 'Somerset' (above) has purple-pink blooms.

↑5ft (1.5m) ↔3ft (1m)

☀️ ☀️ ☀️ ⚠️ Z4–8