

Plants for walls, fences, and vertical surfaces

Climbers and wall shrubs are perfect for decorating walls and fences, with flowers in all colors and interesting leaf textures and plant shapes.

To extend your flower display, grow climbers and wall shrubs that bloom at different times. Try teaming a rambling rose that peaks in early summer with a late-flowering clematis. Avoid partnering two clematis that require different pruning times because you risk cutting off the blooms of an early-flowering variety when pruning a later one to the ground in spring. While self-clinging climbers, such as Boston ivy, stick to surfaces with adhesive pads or roots, other climbers and wall shrubs, such as climbing rose and honeysuckle, need support. Use trellises or galvanized wires secured to a vertical surface or structure.

SHRUB MEDIUM

Abutilon megapotamicum

TRAILING ABUTILON An evergreen shrub with long flexible stems of slim, heart-shaped dark green leaves. It bears yellow and red, pendent bell-shaped flowers all summer. Train against a sunny wall in summer; protect against frost in winter.

↑↔ 6ft (2m)

☀ Z8–10

CLIMBER LARGE

Actinidia kolomikta

VARIEGATED KIWI VINE This woody-stemmed, vigorous, deciduous twining climber is grown for its oval green leaves, splashed with creamy white and pink markings on mature plants. Small, cup-shaped white flowers appear in summer.

↑ 12ft (4m)

☀ Z5–8

CLIMBER MEDIUM

Billardiera longiflora

CLIMBING BLUEBERRY A woody-stemmed, evergreen twining climber with narrow green leaves. Decorative purple-blue fruits in fall follow the small, bell-shaped green-yellow flowers. Grow it against a south-facing wall; protect in winter in cold areas.

↑ 6ft (2m)

☀ Z8–9

CLIMBER LARGE

Campsis x tagliabuana

TRUMPET VINE A vigorous, self-clinging deciduous climber with large leaves divided into oval leaflets. Trumpet-shaped orange flowers appear in summer followed by beanlike seedpods. Can be aggressive; prune in spring to keep it tidy.

↑ 40ft (12m)

☀ Z5–9

CLIMBER SMALL

Clematis Angelique

CLEMATIS A compact, mid- to late-season deciduous clematis with midgreen leaves. It produces numerous lilac-blue flowers for a long period from early summer to mid-fall. Use it to decorate a rose arch, pillar, or tripod.

↑ 4ft (1.2m)

☀ Z5–9

CLIMBER LARGE

Clematis armandii

EVERGREEN CLEMATIS A vigorous, early-flowering evergreen clematis with lance-shaped dark green foliage and scented, single white flowers in early spring. Grow it up a tree or wall in a sheltered, south- or southwest-facing site; shade the roots.

↑ 15ft (5m)

☀ Z7–9

Clematis alpina

ALPINE CLEMATIS This deciduous clematis has divided midgreen leaves and lantern-shaped blue, pink, or white flowers from early to late spring followed by fluffy silvery seedheads. It is ideal for exposed sites; keep the roots shaded.

↑ 10ft (3m)

☀ Z4–9

CLIMBER MEDIUM