

Birds

Most birds can fly. This has meant that over the years, they have been able to live in places that other animals could not get to. They live all over the world, even in the chilly Arctic.

Scientists have discovered that modern birds evolved from dinosaurs.

