

Birds of prey

With their huge wings, sharp talons, and hooked beaks, birds of prey are the hunting kings of the bird world.

Hunting

Many birds of prey spot an animal on the ground from very high up in the air with their excellent eyesight. They swoop down and grab it with their sharp talons.

African hawk eagle

Birds of prey are the only birds that kill with their feet.

Secretary bird

Walkabout

Secretary birds have incredibly long legs. They rarely fly. Instead they can be seen taking long strides across the grasslands of Africa.

These birds are famous for eating snakes, which they kill by stamping on them.

Eagles are the most powerful of the birds of prey. They can kill animals as big as themselves.