

Hunting and defence

Some lizards are fast runners, so they can get away from danger quickly. They also use their speed to catch smaller animals for food.

Get lost!

When the frilled lizard feels threatened, it doesn't run away. Instead it opens its umbrella-like frill around its neck, rocks its body, and hisses loudly. This is often enough to scare the enemy away.

The frilled lizard also lashes its tail backwards and forwards.

When the loose skin on a frilled lizard opens out, it looks four times bigger.

Turn and learn

Insect defence:

pp. 114-115

Fish defence:

pp. 148-149

Frilled lizard