

OTHER MATERIALS

There is no need to buy a huge number of brushes to paint with; the range below will enable you to create a wide variety of effects. Aside from paints, paper, and brushes, keep paper towels on hand for mopping up spills and blotting out mistakes, and jars of water for mixing paints and cleaning brushes. You may also find some of the additional equipment below useful.

ADDITIONAL EQUIPMENT

	Well palettes have several compartments so that you can mix different colors without them running into each other.			Natural sponges are useful for mopping up excess paint and for creating textural effects.

Soft B pencils are useful for preliminary drawings.	Putty erasers are soft and don't damage the surface of paper.		Masking tape is used to attach paper to a drawing board and give a painting a crisp edge.		Craft knives are for sharpening pencils and making highlights.
				Masking fluid covers areas of paper to keep them white. Once it is removed, the paper can be painted as normal.
