

◀ Underwater endurance

As part of his tour of North America in 2017, David Blaine held his breath for as long as possible—the exact length of time varied between performances—while suspended in a water tank. The use of television screens in the stage shows helped their large audiences feel closer to the action.

